

LEONARD & SANDY SARGENT EVST GRADUATE FELLOW

2007-08

Cassidy Randall

Cassidy serves as the director of outreach and engagement at Women's Voices for the Earth and oversees market-based campaigns, including organizing women to take action to leading company policy change negotiations. She also coordinates efforts to mobilize and engage women in WVE's work, including developing the organization's engagement tools like the Body & Soul series, managing social media presence and the Voices blog, and working closely with the Actionista team.

Cassidy's previous experience includes organizing with the Surfrider Foundation (Malibu, CA) as Outreach Coordinator, and women's rights advocacy as Advisor to Eduquemos a La Nina at Ak'Tenamit, a Maya cooperative in Guatemala.

She has served on the boards of Montana Conservation Voters, Community Action for Justice in the Americas, and currently sits on the advisory board for Silent Spring's Visualizing Endocrine Disrupting Compounds project.

Prior to receiving an M.S. from the University of Montana in environmental studies, she earned her B.A. in American literature from UCLA. Her writing has been published in The Huffington Post, Prevention, BlogHer, MomsRising, and more. She is the author of Fighting for the Dream: Voices from a New Generation of Maya Women.
